DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-109, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Double-Take "Meeting the new Requirements for Enterprise Data Protection", further in view of FrameRunner and Orphan et al. US patent 5,812,748.

As per claims 1-26, Double-Take discloses improving data mirroring with non-invasive (page 7 "Compatible - invisible to user and to applications"), TCP journey line (page 9 "wide area connections", it is apparent that the wide area network uses TCP/IP), multiplicity in which the system provides many-to-one and one-to-many mirroring (see page 13). Double-Take does not specifically disclose serverless characteristic and disk emulation.

FrameRunner teaches improving data mirroring with serverless destination (page 2 "No Host Intervention") so as to provide flexible connection to any system with minimal impact to the system performance.

Ohran et al. teaches improving data mirroring with disk emulation by which data is mirrored through standard storage subsystem bus (col.10 line 65 to col.11 line 14) to enable transparent disk mirroring.

It would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to use any combinations of the characteristics above because they would all improved the data mirroring system.

Claims 11-13, It is well known in the art to use SCSI, fibre channel, and USB for storage subsystem bus.

Claims 20, Double-Take teaches (on page 8) a local server linked to a local mirroring unit, which is lined by a journey link (offsite link) to a remote mirroring unit (offsite) .

As per claims 27 ,101, Double-Take teaches a mirroring system essentially as claimed having at least two primary servers (page 8 Production servers) connected to a local mirroring unit (High Availability server), and a remote mirroring unit connected to the local mirroring unit via a journey link (offsite link).

Double-take does not disclose using disk emulator for mirroring data between the primary server and the local mirroring unit and serverless mirroring unit. Ohran et al. teaches disk mirroring by using mass storage emulator [col.10 line 65 to col.

11 line 15]. Double-take does not disclose. FrameRunner teaches improving data mirroring with serverless destination (page 2 "No Host Intervention") so as to provide flexible connection to any system with minimal impact to the system performance. It would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to combine Ohran and FrameRunner with Double-take because it would have enabled efficient transparent disk mirroring.

As per claims 28-45, 102-109, the limitations recited would have been readily apparent to one of ordinary skill in implementing the system as modified.

As per claims 46-75, they are rejected under similar rationale as for claims 27-45 above. Double-take discloses mirroring over low bandwidth journey line (page 9 Tolerant - "...wide area network are slower").

As per claims 89-100, they are rejected under similar rationale as for 27-45 above. It would have been obvious to test after completion of each connection because it would enabled simpler isolation of the cause of any problem than testing after all connections are completed.
